

Name: _____

Date: _____

Animals of McCullough Hills

Across

3. It is the smallest member of the canine family in North America. It only weighs 3-4 pounds.
5. It is the Nevada State Mammal. It is known to climb high, steep, rocky mountain areas.
6. It wedges itself into a tight rock crevice and inflates its lungs in order to entrench itself.
9. It is smaller than a jack rabbit with a tail that looks like a cotton ball.
10. It is the most venomous rattlesnake in North America.

Down

1. It is the most common bird in Southern Nevada. It has a red tail.
2. It has a predatory behavior is like a domestic cat. It tries to conceal itself for a surprise attack while stalking its prey.
4. The adults can inflict a painful bite. It is distinguished by the black collars around its neck.
7. It is typically smaller than a wolf, but has longer ears, thinner frame, face, and muzzle. It carries its tail downwards when running.
8. It can run up to 19 miles an hour. It eats many venomous prey like scorpions, spiders, and rattlesnakes.