

Approaches

Across

4. who suggests that free will is an illusion
 7. identical-twins, sharing 100 percent of their genes are called
 8. the humanist approach does acknowledge this abstract concept, which many of the other approaches do not
 13. a type of learning done through reinforcement
 16. the belief that all knowledge comes from sensory experiences
 19. a person's actual genetic makeup
 20. SLT underestimates the influence of ... factors
 21. type of reductionism that the cognitive approach is
 23. the humanistic approach claims that individuals are '...-determining'

24. token economy systems have been successfully used in institutions such as hospitals and ...
 26. when an individual imitates the behaviour of someone else who has been rewarded for such behaviour '... reinforcement'
 27. a type of learning done through association
- ## Down
1. transferring feelings from the true source of distress onto a substitute target
 2. the way that genes are expressed through behavioural, physical and psychological characteristics
 3. refusing to acknowledge something in order to protect yourself
 5. cognitive processes are not directly ...
 6. if a concept is abstract it is ...

9. forcing a distressing memory out of the conscious mind
 10. morality principle
 11. the humanistic approach is ... (opposite of reductionist)
 12. gaining knowledge of your own mental and emotional state after observing your own conscious thoughts and feelings
 14. non-identical twins, sharing 50 percent of the same genes are called
 15. who suggested the 'hierarchy of needs'
 17. self-actualisation, is the idea that each person has an '...' ability to achieve their full potential
 18. reality principle
 22. SLT - behaviour is learned through ...
 25. pleasure principle