Author's Perspective

Across

2. The author gives us clues to what is going to happen later in the story.
4. Interruptions that writers do to insert past events in order to provide background or context to the current events of a narrative.
8. a report of the exact words of an author or speaker and is placed inside quotation marks in a written work
9. This type of irony occurs when a speaker speaks something contradictory to what he intends to
10. the process of recounting a sequence of events, real or imagined

12. a figure of speech in which words are used in such a way that their intended meaning is different from the actual meaning of the words.

Down

1. With this type of irony, something entirely different happens or the final outcome is opposite to what the audience is expecting
3. The events that make up a story or the main part of a story, which relate to each other in a pattern or a sequence
5. when an author refers to something famous in the text but doesn't offer any explanation.

6. With this type of irony, the audience knows more about the ironic situations, the causes of conflicts and their resolutions before leading characters or actors

7. A literary technique in which writers employ two or more characters to be engaged in conversation with each other.

11. The person for whom a writer writes, or composer composes
