

Name: _____ Date: _____

Blood Specimen Collection

Across

3. Method used for "difficult" sticks
5. Most common type of blood collection used on babies
7. For veinpuncture, place tourniquet ____ inches above elbow
8. Color of first tube that should be drawn
11. Color of fourth tube that should be drawn
12. This colored tube must be completely full to run the lab test
16. Bonus: Name of lab test that should be drawn WITHOUT use of tourniquet
22. (T/F) Is it always good practice to explain the procedure to the patient
23. Color of last tube that should be drawn
24. Tube used for whole blood collection that is allowed to clot
25. It is always good practice to ____ the vein prior to applying tourniquet
27. (T/F) Before any blood draw, one must verify THREE or more patient identifiers

28. Obtains blood from just under the surface of the skin

33. Site for capillary puncture for newborns/infants
36. Use this method if a large amount of blood is need to perform tests

37. Method used when patient has very small veins

38. Green tubes contain ____

Down

1. Capillary puncture site for adults (____ finger)
2. Most common vein used for veinpuncture
4. Most common veinpuncture method
6. Most common vein used for veinpuncture
9. Light blue tubes are used for ____ testing
10. Tube that separates red cells from serum
13. With capillary puncture, puncture the skin ____ the fingerprints
14. Capillary puncture site for adults (____ finger)
15. Lavender tubes contain ____

17. Color of second tube that should be drawn

18. (T/F) is it vital to use correct tubes when using the vacuum method for veinpuncture

19. Amount of blood needed when drawing several tubes (spell out)

20. Tube that contains potassium oxalate and sodium fluoride, typically used to collect blood needed for blood glucose and blood

21. Gauge of needle is important to prevent ____

26. (T/F) Leave tourniquet on longer than 1 minute

29. Veinpuncture is also called

30. Color of sixth tube that should be drawn

31. Color of fifth tube that should be drawn

32. Instrument used for capillary puncture

34. Common tool used to prick the skin for a capillary puncture

35. Color of third tube that should be drawn