COM-1010 Chapter 3

Across

6. What type of communication involves a time lapse between messages?

13. What is the degree to which the information is supported by other people and outside evident?

17. What is intended to cause social embarrassment, inflict emotional pain, or damage a persons reputation called?

18. What is a dramatic reduction in your ability to experience the other persons feelings called?

19. What remediated messages perceived by the recipient as disturbing, threatening, or obsessive called?

20. What type of communication is communication with others that is separated by some type of technological device?

Down

1. What is it called when people send flame messages on purpose to start fights?

2. What type of media enables communicators to directly send and receive messages in real time or across time intervals to manage their personal and professional relationships?

3. What model shows that many of the cues vital for making sense of messages are not available?

4. What do people use to avoid conversation, prevent embarrassment, or simply be polite?

5. What does profile information have if the social media feed has photos of you in a social setting and relevant comments from others?

7. What type of communication is a back-and-forth exchange of messages that occur in real time?

8. What are you demonstrating when you practice creating drafts?

9. What is it called when people integrate mediated communication into the less stimulating moments of their lives?

10. What is it called when people feel free to say things, good or bad, that they would never say to someone face-to-face?

11. What does information that was obviously crafted by the person, that isn't supported by others online, or that can't be verified offline have?

12. What is it called when you use social media in a community-based fashion and include heightening public awareness of important causes?

14. What type of media is mediated communication that involves the sending of messages from content creators to huge, relatively anonymous audiences?

15. What is it when people send messages that intentionally mislead or create a false belief in recipients?

16. What is it called when people say vicious and aggressive things online that they would never say in person?