

Name: _____

Ch. 1 Preliminaries to Human Communication

Across

3. The information provided before the primary message is called a _____ message.
7. Communication between two or a few people.
14. When someone understands how communication works and they know how to use it
15. Anything that distorts a message. Can be physical, psychological, physiological, or semantic.
16. A listener does the
17. The communication effect that effects someones thinking.
19. The speaker does the

20. Message that refers to another message

21. All communication has some _____ on the people involved.

Down

1. Communication within an organization.
2. Audio/visual communication directed towards an extremely large audience
4. Communication that takes place within oneself.
5. What is it called when one or more people send and receive messages?
6. The speaker is the

8. The listener is known as the

9. _____ communication changes someones attitudes, beliefs, or emotions.

10. _____ communication is between five to ten people.

11. A type of message sent back to the speaker reacting to what they said.

12. The _____ context refers to the time communication is/was taking place.

13. The type of communication that is also referred to a public speaking.

18. The environment communication takes place in