Chapter 5

Across

4. This is the point of contact between the human and the computer

6. A software application that allows you to view and navigate the content of the WWW

9. A computer program that gathers and indexes documents, and then searches the database and retrieves documents based on a match with the query

10. The review of an article by experts in the field is known as _____ reviewing

12. URL stands for _____ Resource Locator

15. The part of the Internet that is accessible though a browser

16. A _____ link is a text-link on a web page that serves as an advertisement. The advertiser has to pay to have the link displayed.

17. A type of search engine that specializes in non-text information, for example graphics (pictures) and sound clips.

Down

1. A network of computer networks that operates worldwide using a common set of communication protocols

2. A synonym for Spider

3. GoogleTM _____ is the name of a search engine that specializes in scholarly literature.

5. A computer program that matches the user's query with the index of the database in order to retrieve relevant documents

7. To index a document is to represent it in terms of _____.

8. This is created by people who search for information on the Web and index the useful and informative sites they find.

11. A computer program that trawls the Web looking for documents to add to the search engine database

13. A specialized search engine that need a fast rate of update is known as a _____ search engine.

14. A _____ search engine interprets a query and send it to several search engines simultaneously. It then manages the results from the various search engines and displays it as a single set.

Word Bank

Browser	Sponsored	Crawler	Internet	Scholar
Multimedia	Uniform	Search engine	Spider	Query manager
Peer	WWW	Keywords	Directory	Interface
Meta	News			