

Name: _____

Date: _____

Chapter 5

Across

3. The atmosphere or environment within a group
5. Roles that encompass behaviors that contribute directly to accomplishment of a group task
9. The stage in group socialization in which group members show full intergration
11. The process by which new/or established members learn to fit together through communication
12. Formal, explicit standards of behavior and procedures by which a group operates.
13. Members who conscistantly violate group norms

14. The tendency of highly cohesive groups not to evaluate thoroughly and critically all aspects of a decision or problem.

15. The stage in group socialization during which members expectations meet with reality as members adjust and fit with each other.

16. The stage in group socialization during which members bring previous group experiences, attitudes, beliefs, motives, and communication traits to the process.

Down

1. Roles that encompass self-centered behaviors that place the individual's need ahead of the group's needs.

2. the bonds of attachment members have for each other

4. The general belief that members can rely on each other.

6. The stage in group socialization describing individual and group initial expectations of each other

7. The stage in group socialization in which individuals leave a group or the group disbands

8. The part a member plays in a group.

10. An unstated private goal a member wants to achieve through a group