Chapter 6

Across

- 1. 1. What is another name for skin?
- 3. What burn has a short healing process, commonly happens with sunburn, and only damages the epidermis.
- 5. The protective coverings on ends of fingers and toes.
- 7. Is the second most common form of skin cancer appearing as red scaly patches and like warts.
- 10. What skin layer that consist of hair follicles and glands and composed of collagen?
- 14. This one begins in the base cell appears white and lumpy and appears mostly near areas exposed by the sun

- 16. What is the outermost layer of skin called that creates skin tone?
- 17. This type of skin cancer is most severe appears in brown patches.
- 18. What is the tube-like depression where the hair develops called?
- 19. Which sweat gland can be found in the lining of the external ear canal?

Down

- 2. What is the surface of skin, under nail plate called?
- 4. Which burn destroys epidermis and some dermis, caused by hot liquid blisters.

- 6. The Subcutaneous layer of skin that mainly consist of fat & provides support for the skin?
- 8. How is a burn classified?
- 9. What is one way the skin allows the body to cool down?
- 11. What are two or more types of tissues grouped together which formed specialized functions called?
- 12. Hair color comes from what?
- 13. Destroys multiple layers of skin and may require a skin graph.
- 15. What form of vitamin does the skin help produce?

Word Bank

Dermis Basal cell Second Degree Epidermis Hypodermis Ceruminous glands Melanoma Cutaneous Membrane nails Melanin Vitamin D First Degree nail bed Third Degree Sweat Organ Hair follicle Squamous Cell Tissue damage