

Chapter 7 Motivation and Emotion

Across

2. The body's tendency to maintain a steady internal state
 6. He set motivational needs into a hierarchy where primary needs need to be met before higher needs can be satisfied
 8. A type of motivation based on receiving a concrete reward
 10. This theory states that emotions are determined by a nonspecific kind of physiological arousal and its interpretation
 11. A person who has sexual attraction to someone of their opposite sex

13. Type of motivation that involves one's own enjoyment rather than a reward
 14. Inborn pattern of behavior that are biologically determined
Down

1. A disorder in which people binge on large amounts of food, then purge the food by vomiting or other means
 3. The top level of Maslow's hierarchy involving a state of self-fulfillment
 4. A disorder marked by pursuit of extreme thinness and extreme weight loss

5. The factors that direct and energize the behavior of humans and other
 7. This theory of emotion states that both physiological arousal and emotional experience are produced at the same time by the same nerve stimulus
 9. One who is attracted to people of the both sexes
 12. Feelings that generally have both physiological and cognitive elements and that influence behavior