

Name: _____

Date: _____

Chapter 8 review

Across

6. behavior intended to harm another person or object

8. Different patterns of behavior exhibited by boys and girls

9. style of parenting that is high in nurturance and low in maturity demands, control, and communication.

10. style of parenting that is low in nurturance and communication, high in control and demands

11. style of parenting that is low in nurturance, maturity demands, control, and communication

12. behavior that is atypical for one's own sex but typical for the opposite sex

13. style of parenting that is high in nurturance, maturity demands, control, and communication

Down

1. toddler begins to develop some implicit understanding of her own roles in social "scripts"—routines of play or interaction with others

2. ability to classify others according to categories such as age, gender, and race

3. Behavior intended to help another person

4. ability to control emotional states and emotional related behavior

5. information-processing approach to gender concept development, asserting that people use a schema for each gender to process information about themselves and others

7. ability to integrate oneself into a group without disrupting it