

Name: _____

Date: _____

Computer words

Across

4. Occurs when a user presses a button on the mouse twice in quick succession; this generates a command to the computer

10. A device (usually within the computer case) that reads and writes information, including the operating system, program files, and data files

12. A small text file sent to your computer by a web site you have visited

13. A peripheral device used to point to items on a monitor

14. A piece of software that can copy itself and which attaches itself to some other program in order to survive and replicate. It may have some malicious intent or it may exist simply to reproduce

16. A device used to display information visually

17. Central Processing Unit

18. temporary storage used by a computer whilst it is switched on

19. A peripheral device that converts output from a computer into a printed image

Down

1. A peripheral used to input data by pressing keys

2. the term which refers to the instructions needed to make a computer work

3. Occurs when a user presses a button on a mouse which in turn, generates a command to the computer

5. 8 bits

6. what you go on, when you want to be online

7. Transferring data from another computer to your computer

8. the term referring to all the physical parts in a computer system

9. A program you use to look at, and navigate between, pages on the World Wide Web. Examples include Internet Explorer and Firefox

11. a "binary digit"

15. switch a computer off and on again