

Different Types Of Service Dogs

Across

2. These service dogs are trained to sniff out and alert to the odor of things such as peanuts or gluten.
 4. These service dogs react with a specific type of behavior right before a person has a seizure.
 9. These service dogs can perform a wide range of tasks for people with a wide range of mobility issues.
 10. These service dogs assist by alerting to noises

Down

1. These service dogs provide help to a person experiencing an epileptic seizure

3. These service dogs can alert to chemical changes in blood sugar.

5. These dogs provide a sense of predictability as the children navigate social settings

6. These types of service dogs assist people who are suffering from issues like depression, anxiety and most often post-traumatic stress disorder.

7. Assistance dogs who lead visually impaired and blind people around obstacles

8. These service dogs support children who were exposed to alcohol prenatally.

Word Bank

Mobility Assistance

seizure response

Autism Support

allergy detection

FASD

Guide

Hearing

diabetic alert

seizure alert

Psychiatric