

Gastrointestinal Associates

Across

3. What precaution means treating all bodily fluids as if they are infectious

4. What do you use to pick up broken glass?

7. Who is the Security Officer at GIA?

12. What turns on when there is a power outage?

13. Three things to remember if there is an active shooter?

14. What is the code to be called for fire?

15. What department at GIA does quality control?

16. First thing to get when there is a spill

18. Where you shouldn't stand next too during a tornado

23. What is the code to call for a severe weather event?

24. What is the code for a patient emergency?

26. All employees should wear this

27. What protects you from exposure?

28. One way HIV can be spread

29. What do you do in case of a tornado?

30. Who is the focus of OSHA?

32. GIA uses single use of these

33. What should you not take when there is a fire in the building?

34. What GIA uses when there is an eye splash

37. What risk factor should all employees monitor for and report immediately?

38. What organization works to keep you safe at work?

39. Product to use in the clean up of a biohazard spill

40. Another signal word

41. Where to aim a fire extinguisher?

42. First step to take when been exposed to blood or potentially infections material at work

Down

1. What All GIA facilities are

2. Cleaning process GIA uses on the scopes

5. A signal word

6. One reason to evacuate the building

8. Microorganisms that are present in blood and cause disease

9. What you do if you are not on a fire team

10. Who removes biohazardous material from our facilities?

11. What do you file when there has been an accident at work

17. GIA's Safety Officer

19. Hazardous communications also includes

20. What should be turned off in the event of a fire?

21. What HIV is

22. What to do if you cannot escape the building for active shooter

25. The most advanced stage of HIV

31. Hazardous communications includes

35. A lung disease that can affect your brain, kidneys and spine

36. What is the anagram you should remember when using a fire extinguisher