

Glossary 2

Across

8. A strong preference of ethnicity, object, and many others.

9. The gap or difference on time between a subject and target. It may be present in under-developed regions to modernized regions.

10. To signify a certain act, group, or ideas.

Down

1. An active cultivation of one's sense of self

2. A strict hierarchical form in medieval Christianity, which had significant effect on the nature of universe in Western ideas and life, which later on still validates an influence on society.

3. A phenomenon related to power in social lives that creates hierarchies.

4. Forced submission to control by others

5. Marx defines this as an external object that satisfies human needs and then later exchanged for something else.

6. A commodity that can be traded within the market defined by Karl Marx. This is now replaced by money.

7. A political economy concept by Karl Marx referring to tradeable object that satisfies people and be transferred into a commodity.