

Gr 10 Theory Term 3

Across

2. The main page of a website.
3. A webpage has the ability to display that users access over the Internet.
7. The device that forwards data from one network to another along the most efficient route
8. The act of quoting someone else's work as your own.
10. A fraudulent process of trying to obtain sensitive information by redirecting users from a legitimate website to a fake website.
13. Greenpeace is an example of anwebsite.
17. A well known example of a search engine other than Google.
18. A network that is created by connecting personal computing devices like a cellular phone in a network that will extend to within only a few meters of the user.
19. An application programme is used in the CAT class to create webpages
22. A device responsible for converting the digital signals of the computer to analogue signals
23. In the name of the website www.lhs.co.za the za refer to
25. Hardware that joins multiple computers together in one network
27. A group of e-mail addresses that have been given one name.

28. A company that provides a fast 24 hour connection to the internet.

31. When you files, you transfer the files from a Web server to your computer.
32. A website that contains articles on current affairs, sport, weather and other newsworthy items.
33. A secure wireless technology with an operating distance limited by line of sight.
34. Each page on the Internet has its own unique web address which is referred to as the
35. What is the name of the company that you would associate with "Gmail"?
37. An example of a portal website
38. The button will reload the page if you experience problems when opening a webpage.

Down

1. In the name of the website www.lhs.co.za the lhs part indicates the
4. A language that specifies the layout and appearance of web pages
5. A network that is created when a user connects computing devices within a home.
6. An online meeting between two or more people in different locations.
9. An online service that enables people to keep in touch with friends, post photos, share links and exchange other information.

11. An example of delayed-time e-communication is a
12. A network that links computer networks from all over the world by means of satellites and telephone connections
14. The use of an e-mail message to trick the recipient into disclosing sensitive, personal information
15. A is an electronic shortcut that you click to navigate to somewhere else on the Internet.
16. A free e-mail service provided by websites
20. An inaccurate statement or story that is spread to deceive readers into believing something that isn't true
21. Virtual room on the Internet where people meet
24. A public area that provides wireless Internet connectivity for laptops and other mobile devices.
26. An online document that can be edited and updated by many people at the same time
29. The portion of the Internet that includes all web pages
30. A is an online diary
36. You need a computing device such as a computer, a physical communication channel and a for connection to the Internet.