

Name: _____

Date: _____

I Made This From My Tears

Across

4. Combines multiple questions and often leads to inaccurate answers
 5. Explanations of solutions
 9. Known only to the participant
 15. What subject areas you must look into to solve the problem
 16. Clear description of the situation that created the need for a report
 20. Asking respondent to rank a number of alternative answers about a given topic
 21. A need in a report
 22. Measures a persons experience when interacting with a product
 25. Provides scale showing complete range of possible attitudes on a topic and assigns number values to the positions on the scale

26. Submitting another person's published work as your own without properly crediting it

28. Tool that allows you to enter a search term once and run the search simultaneously with several search engines

29. The ability to generate similar results when used in similar circumstances

30. Libraries that limit their collection to one or just a few types of materials

Down

1. Orderly arrangement of survey questions with spaces for the answers
 2. A group that represents a whole
 3. Type of primary research that involves watching or recording a participant
 6. A report's objective written in the form of a question or infinitive phrase
 7. Uses materials someone else has published

8. Writing in third person without (I, We, You) perspective

10. Makes tweets easier to find

11. Orderly and objective communication of factual information that serves a business purpose

12. Viewpoint that presents all current information as current as the time of writing

13. The logistics of distributing a survey

14. More forceful and direct style of writing

17. A group of people reviewing a product

18. Collaborative collections of online knowledge

19. Electronic mailing lists

23. Known only to the researcher and the participant

24. How ideas relate in terms of levels of generality

27. A micro blogging service