

Infectious Diseases

Across

3. If you have a disease the doctor may treat you with a

7. White blood cells are called

10. Epidemics are normally caused by these types of diseases

13. Injections, which cause you to become immune to the disease are called

15. Single-celled organisms that are much larger and more complex than bacteria are known as

18. Your body's second line of defense

19. Some bacteria injure cells by giving off poisons called

20. B lymphocytes are also called

21. Viruses that cause disease are called this

22. Your body's third line of defense

23. T lymphocytes are also called

Down

1. Blood, other fluids, and white blood cells are called

2. An unusually high occurrence of a disease in a certain place during a certain time period

4. Simple, single-celled microorganisms

5. Also known as communicable diseases

6. A network of vessels that collects fluid from your tissues and returns it to the blood stream.

8. Very small organisms

9. The smallest type of pathogen

11. Organisms such as yeasts, molds, and mushrooms are known as

12. The openings into your body, such as your mouth, eyes, and nose, are covered by protective linings called

14. Proteins that attach to the surface of pathogens or to the toxin produced by pathogens.

16. Your body's ability to destroy pathogens

17. The substance that is injected from a vaccination is called a