

Name: _____

Date: _____

Intelligence Crossword

Across

2. the symmetrical bell-shaped curve that describes the distribution of many physical & psychological attributes

4. the extent to which a test samples the behavior that is of interest

5. the extent to which a test yields consistent results (by using two halves of the test or retesting)

9. a test that assesses what a person has learned

11. a condition of limited mental ability varying from mild to profound; shown by IQ of 70 or below

13. the ability to perceive, understand, manage, & use emotions

15. the ratio of mental age to chronological age multiplied by 100

16. a statistical procedure that identifies clusters of related items on a test Savant syndrome, a condition in which a person limited in mental ability has an exceptional specific skill, like drawing

17. Defining meaningful scores by comparison with the performance of a pretested group

18. a test that predicts a person's future performance

19. the ability to learn from experience, solve problems, and use knowledge to adapt to new situations

20. the success with which a test predicts the behavior it's supposed to

21. the most widely used intelligence test; has verbal & nonverbal subtests

Down

1. the ability to produce novel & valuable ideas

3. the extent to which a test predicts what it's supposed to

6. According to Spearman & others, a general factor that underlies specific mental abilities & is measured by every task on an intelligence test

7. a method for assessing an individual's mental aptitudes & comparing them with those of others (using numerical scores)

8. a self-confirming concern that one will be evaluated based on a negative stereotype

10. the widely used American revision of Binet's original intelligence test (revised by Terman at Stanford University)

12. a condition of retardation & associated physical disorders caused by an extra copy of chromosome 21

14. the chronological age that most corresponds to a given level of performance (a measure of intelligence test performance by Binet)