

Name: _____

Date: _____

Oceanography

Across

5. A steady incline marks the continental slope. Continental slopes in the Pacific are steeper than those in the Atlantic ocean.
7. Mountains whose peaks do not break the surface of the ocean water above them
9. Consisting of or containing salt or another word for salt
10. A long body of water curling in to an arched form and breaking on the shore

11. These canyons include the deepest spots on Earth the Mariana Trench in the Pacific is 11 kilometers deep

12. The passively floating or weakly swimming usually minute animal and plant life of a body of water

Down

1. This gradually sloping area borders each continent. Its width varies from just a few kilometers to as much as 1,300 kilometers from shore

2. A body of water or air moving in a different direction, especially though a surrounding body of water or in air which there is less movement

3. Free swimming aquatic animals essentially independent of wave and current action

4. Organisms that live on or in the bottom of a body of water

6. Thick layers of sediment, formed by the sunken remains of dead organisms from the surface, cover these vast, flat plains.

8. The gravitational pull from the moon make it high & low