

Name: _____

Date: _____

Process of Birth

Across

4. Process of palpating the mother's abdomen to determine fetal position
5. Phase of labor when contractions are strong and woman may lose control.
6. Characterized by inconsistent contractions and no cervical change.
8. Characterized by contractions that become more consistent and effacement and dilation of the cervix.
9. Stage of labor characterized by separation and delivery of the placenta.
10. Which phase of labor is commonly the longest in duration?

11. Stage of labor characterized by complete dilation, bearing down and delivery of the baby

Down

1. Name of the mechanisms of the baby twisting and turning to fit through mother's pelvis
2. Stage of labor when the cervix thins and dilates.
3. Stage of labor when there is physical recovery for mom and infant.
7. Phase of labor when contractions tend to be 2-3 minutes apart, last 40-60 seconds and are moderate to strong.