

Psychology Chapter 5 Vocab

Across

- 2. One of Thorndike's laws of learning states the consequence of a response will determine whether the tendency to respond in that way will be higher or lower
- 3. Operant conditioning technique that consists of gradually molding a desired behavior
- 6. Event that follows a response and increases the probability that the response will be repeated
- 10. Soundproof chamber with a device for delivering food to an animal subject
- 11. Reinforcer that fulfills a basic physical need for survival and does not depend on learning

12. Intense dislike and/or avoidance of a food associated with nausea or discomfort

13. Anything that follows a response and weakens it

14. Any event or object in the environment to which an organism responds

15. Voluntary behavior accidentally brings a consequence

Down

1. Relatively permanent change in behavior, knowledge, capability, or attitude that is acquired through experience and can't be attributed to illness, injury, or maturation

4. Schedule in which a reinforcer is given after a fixed number of correct, nonreinforced responses

5. Anything that follows a response and strengthens it

7. Weakening and eventual disappearance of the conditioned response

8. Learned ability to distinguish between similar stimuli

9. Tendency to make a conditioned response to a stimulus that is similar to the original conditioned stimulus