

Psychology Vocabulary

Across

- 6. A brain structure that relays sensory information to the cerebral cortex
- 7. A bundle of neuron axons
- 9. A memory aid or strategy
- 10. The act of causing some effect
- 11. Glandular secretions that affect bodily functions or behavior
- 13. Continuing to study or learn after you think you've mastered a topic

15. Contents of the mind that are beyond awareness, especially impulses and desires not directly known to a person

16. A combination of preference for hand, foot, eye, and ear

17. A brain structure that controls posture, muscle tone, and coordination

Down

- 1. A physical energy that affects a person and evokes a response
- 2. Changes in behavior due to participants' expectations that a drug (or other treatment) will have some effect

3. Unfounded belief held without evidence or in spite of falsifying evidence

4. A Freudian approach to psychotherapy that emphasizes exploring unconscious conflicts

5. The existence of a consistent, systematic relationship between two events, measures, or variables

8. The production of new brain cells

12. Fiber that carries information away from the cell body of a neuron

14. A part of the limbic system associated with fear responses