

Social Influence

Across

4. a type of conformity where we identify with a group and there is something we value but our privately held belief remains the same
7. who investigated conformity using the line study
8. what type of experiment was used in the line study
11. the state in which we believe we are responsible for our actions
13. a type of conformity that is most permanent and the groups belief becomes your own

14. the state in which we believe we are not responsible for our actions

Down

1. what idea did the stanford prison study investigate
2. who conducted the Stanford Prison Study
3. how much you believe you or the environment around you has control over your life
5. defined as yielding to group pressure

6. the name given to individuals who seem to be participants but in reality are part of the research team
9. one of the variables that affected conformity where 3 was considered optimal
10. a type of conformity where only behaviour is changed and lasts as long as group pressure is exerted
12. a variable affecting conformity where not everyone agrees with the same answer