

Tristyn's Math Crossword

Across

2. the process of combining matrices, vectors, or other quantities under specific rules to obtain their product
 8. a number that contains only 2 factors
 9. used to help write expressions involving repeated multiplication in a simplified form

10. the process of taking a matrix, vector, or other quantity away from another under specific rules to obtain the difference
 11. the action or process of adding something to something else
 12. making a number simpler but keeping its value close to what it was

Down

1. the action of separating something into parts or the process of being separated

3. a number that contains 3 or more factors
 4. another name for negative and positive numbers
 5. the numbers you use to multiply together to get another number
 6. a number that is multiplied by itself to make another number
 7. the number which produces a given number when cubed