

Vocab 2

Across

2. Verse that does not follow a fixed metrical pattern.
3. The character defect that causes the downfall of the protagonist of a tragedy.
12. The use of a word referring to or replacing a word used earlier in a sentence to avoid repetition.
13. The subject is doing the acting
15. A noun or noun phrase that renames another noun right beside it.
16. Repetitive sounds produced by consonants within a sentence or phrase.
17. A part of an actor's lines supposedly not heard by others on the stage and intended only for the audience.
19. A pair of successive lines of verse, especially a pair that rhyme and are of the same length.
20. The process of analyzing and developing an idea or principle in detail.

Down

1. A great or virtuous character in a dramatic tragedy who is destined for downfall, suffering, or defeat.
4. A style of art or literature that emphasized the imagination and emotions.
5. The formation of a word by imitation of a sound made by or associated with its referent.
6. The placing of a sentence or one of its parts against another to which it is opposed to form a balanced contrast of ideas.
7. Art and literature that sought to release the creative potential of the unconscious mind.
8. Rhyme in which the same vowel sounds are used with different consonants in the stressed syllables of the rhyming words.
9. A word, phrase, or clause, usually a substantive, that is replaced by a pronoun or other substitute later, or occasionally earlier, in the same or in another, usually subsequent, sentence.
10. The subject of the sentence is acted on by the verb.
11. A theory of writing in which the ordinary, familiar, or mundane aspects of life are represented in a straightforward or matter-of-fact manner that is presumed to reflect life as it actually is.
14. The language, especially the vocabulary, peculiar to a particular trade, profession, or group.
18. An utterance or discourse by a person who is talking to himself or herself or is disregarding or oblivious to any hearers present.