

Name: _____

Date: _____

Year 12 Psychology Revision

Across

3. Albert Bandura is associated with which model of learning

8. The gradual decrease in the strength of rate of a response

9. Sensory memory is in what form?

12. What is the third stage of observational learning

13. This stage of observational learning involves the learner mentally representing and recollecting what they have observed

14. This term is also referred to as working memory

15. In operant conditioning this word is defined as the outcome of the behaviour

16. This involves removing something undesirable to increase the likelihood of that behaviour reoccurring

Down

1. What is the capacity of long-term memory?

2. Remembering how to ride a bike is an example of what type of memory?

4. In Pavlov's experiment, the salivation in response to the bell is a/an

5. A type of learning in which consequences of the behaviour determines the likelihood that it will be performed again in the future

6. In terms of the three-phase model of operant conditioning, a phone ringing when awaiting an important phone call from your mother is an example of which phase

7. What is visual memory called

10. What is the capacity of short term memory

11. What is the nature of the response in operant conditioning