

Name: _____

Date: _____

chapter 22

Across

3. discharge or escape of fluid from a vessel into the surrounding tissue that can cause localized vasoconstriction, resulting in sloughing of tissue and tissue necrosis if not reversed with an antidote
 5. within the gastrointestinal tract
 8. small sealed glass container that holds a single dose of parenteral solution in a sterile condition
 10. catheter inserted directly into the vein for drug administration
 11. concentrated mass of pharmaceutical preparation
 12. beneath the skin

13. pertaining to the inside of the mouth

15. applied to a certain area of the skin and affecting only the area to which it is applied
 16. entering through the skin
 17. within or between the layers of skin
 18. within a vein
 19. beneath the tongue

Down

1. medication that is delivered by intravenous push or intravenous infusion directly in the vein

2. drug administration by a route other than the gastrointestinal tract, typically by injection through the skin
 4. infusion of liquid directly into the vein
 6. within the muscle tissue
 7. puncture of a vein
 9. inserted into the rectum
 14. small glass bottle containing multiple doses of a drug

Word Bank

sublingual
 transdermal
 buccal
 extravasation intravenous

rectal angiocath
 bolus
 enteral intramuscular

drip infusion subcutaneous
 intradermal
 venipuncture topical

intravenous injection parenteral or parenterally
 ampule
 vial