

chapter 5 barber

Across

2. What is the razor of choice for professional barbering?

5. What type of combs are slightly flexible and durable but can deteriorate if left in a disinfectant over an extended time?

9. What type of blade consist of a convex blade that has a bevel ground onto the blade edge?

11. What handle design has a shorter thumb shank to reduce overextension and is considered to be more ergonomically correct?

13. What type of combs are preferable for detangling, creating styling effects, or distributing product though the hair?

14. A _____ is an effective choice for combing through textured or tightly curled hair.

15. Which of the following shear parts controls the distance between the blades?

Down

1. In what type of electric clipper motor do the blades pull in one direction?

3. You should practice opening and closing shears, using only the _____ to manipulate the moving blade of the shears.

4. What are clipper guards also known as?

6. With shear blades, what part of the blade does the cutting?

7. Choosing the right implement or tool for the job will depend on your understanding of the item's _____.

8. Which shears are made by working heated metal into a finished shape through the processes of hammering or compression?

10. What appliance would be used to perform finishing and styling work on your clients?

12. What tool is used for finish and detail work?

Word Bank

offset thumb

Functions

semi convex

outliners

hair pick

Blowdryer

Hard rubber

Wide-toothed straight forged

Tension screw magnetic cutting edge

attachment combs